

CARNIVAL IN MOKENA SCHOOL FRIDAY AND SATURDAY EVENINGS

The big thing in Mokena this week end is the PTA carnival which will be held starting Friday evening at seven o'clock in the Mokena school gym. Saturday's program starts at 5:30 with a cafeteria dinner.

The sponsors are planning a booth of used, useable toys which can be sold for a few cents. Every child likes a different toy, so if you have a toy which your child does not care for any longer, you are requested to donate it to the PTA so they can place it in the booth for sale, and thus give another child the joy of a new toy at little cost.

All who will donate used toys are asked to send or bring them to the school any time Thursday or early Friday morning.

There will be other booths to attract the visitors, also entertainment features. The wax exhibit is most attractive. Come and meet your friends and neighbors and enjoy a pleasant evening or two. Don't forget the dinner Saturday evening.

Hallowe'en Trick Causes Auto Accident

A thoughtless Hallowe'en prankster nearly caused a fatal accident last Saturday evening, when they planted a bomb under the hood of Mr. Charles Osborne's Hudson sedan.

Miss Florence Walsh of Mokena, and her fiancé, Mr. Osborne, of Chicago, returned late Saturday night from an evening's entertainment, and his car was parked in the rear of the Walsh home.

Sunday morning, he and Miss Walsh drove into Joliet, and when they were approaching the former Duck-Inn trailer camp, they noticed smoke coming from the hood of their car. Miss Walsh's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Hauser were behind them in their car, and when the Osborne car suddenly burst into flames, Miss Walsh opened the car door to jump out, but the wind caught the door and pulled her out, throwing her on the pavement where she rolled over four times. The Hausers stopped and picked her up and took her to Joliet for first aid.

Mr. Osborne, who has charge of a garage in Chicago, inspected his car, and found the bomb, which had been placed incorrectly, and which caused a short in the wiring, causing the fire. The upholstery in the car on the right side was all burnt. It seems that the bombs, placed a certain way, are to explode when the starter is stepped on. This one did not do that.

Miss Walsh is under a physician's care, suffering from a deep cut on her right knee and a deep bruise on her left hip, which is badly swollen. She is not able to attend to her duties in the Old Ben Coal company in Chicago.

Strawstack Burned on Lehnert-Egert Farm

A fire of unknown origin was discovered in the straw stack on the Lehnert-Egert farm south of Spencer early Monday morning by the hired man.

The straw stack really is two stacks combined and the family members and neighbors helped to keep it under control until the New Lenox fire department arrived. Because of the heavy damp fog that morning, the fire did not progress as rapidly as it might have done. The fire was confined to the stack and no buildings were damaged.

The Ernest Lehnert and Arthur Egert families work this 400 acre farm which is located 1 1/2 miles south of the Spencer elevator.

Tinley Firemen To Hold Dance Nov. 9

The Tinley Park Volunteer fire department members, those men who stand guard over your homes, 24 hours of every day, and without pay, are sponsoring their annual fall dance this Saturday evening, November 6. The Saenger ballroom is the place, and the firemen have done their utmost to assure an enjoyable evening of dancing, by engaging the danceable music of Bill Bridgell and his orchestra.

All in the territory served by the Tinley Park fire department are invited to this dance. But on the other hand, it ought not be necessary to invite anyone to this dance, which is given to provide needed equipment for your fire department, it really is a duty to attend or at least buy a ticket. Then, too, a good time is assured, as in all previous years, everyone had a good time at the firemen's dance.

Two Local 4-H Club Members Delegates To Nat'l Congress

An announcement just received by the Will County Farm and Home Bureau offices from the state 4-H Club offices of the University of Illinois reveals that Gladys Mae Krapf of Manhattan and Kenneth Heisner of Peotone were named as two of the twenty-six Illinois 4-H Club members who have been selected as delegates to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago on November 28 to December 2. This is one of the most outstanding honors that can be bestowed upon any 4-H Club member.

Gladys Mae, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krapf is a member of the Green Garden Snip 'N Snack Home Economic 4-H Club and has carried on Home Economic club work for 11 years. She has been assistant leader of her club for the past four years, and has been named in previous years as both county and state project honor and county and state outstanding member. In 1947 Gladys Mae was selected to attend the state 4-H leadership camp at East Bay, Lake Broomington.

Among her projects carried were clothing, foods, room, improvement and leisure hour. Leader of her club is Mrs. Mabel Krapf of Manhattan.

Kenneth, is the 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Heisner of Peotone and likewise has been an outstanding 4-H Club member in Will county for several years and has just now completed his ninth year as a member of the West Peotone Agriculture 4-H club led by his brother, Harold. Kenneth has been an assistant leader for the past two years. In addition to this high honor he has been named as one of the two high ranking boys in Will county in the Better Methods activity conducted this year by the Public Service Companies of Northern Illinois. He was also selected by the county 4-H club committee this year as a member of the blue award group in Holstein-Friesian cattle.

It will be recalled that Kenneth and his family entertained Kenneth Osborne of England for several days in November, 1947.

Both of these outstanding 4-H club members have won many "A" ratings on their 4-H projects in this and previous years. In addition, both have been active in local and county 4-H club events and have shown much leadership ability.

Will county is proud of and congratulates these outstanding young folks, their families and their local 4-H club leaders. It is certainly quite an honor for one county to have had two of the twenty-six total delegates chosen to attend the National Club Congress.

BISHOP TO VISIT NEW LENOX CHURCH

The Right Reverend Wallace E. Conkling, Bishop of Chicago, will make his annual visitation to the Grace Episcopal church at New Lenox to administer confirmation Wednesday evening, November 17 at 8 o'clock.

CARD OF THANKS

We extend our most grateful thanks to all our neighbors and to the New Lenox fire department for their quick response to our call and for their good work in fighting the fire at our strawstack Monday.

ERNEST LEHNERT

A long procession of over three hundred hilarious goblins, ghosts, hoboes rabbits and many other colorful costumes delighted the crowd of onlookers lining the highway along Oak Park avenue in Tinley Park, Sunday evening October 31.

Coupled with a low ceiling and heavy atmosphere, the smoke from 69 red fusee flares purchased for the occasion and set out along the highway by Fred Zimmerman and other volunteers, gave to the affair an eerie light in keeping with Hallowe'en. It left an impression on all that will be long remembered.

Traffic control was perfect. Some of the prize winners were Jimmy Farmer and Rosemary Lumbert, $5.00 each; Donald Hirsch and Carl Gallena $2.50 each; Joe Asher, Tim Van Antwerp and Joellyn Jeffords $1.00 each. Ten other $1.00 winners cannot be listed as they left before a record could be made of their names. Mel Hopman substituted as judge for Fred Fremder, who was unavoidably called away. The judges had such a difficult time selecting fourteen winners that they finally contributed additional money to make the seventeen prizes.

Dancing at the school was enjoyed with refreshments of doughnuts and cokes. The younger children well attended by interested parents, played games at the village hall and received candy corn, jelly beans and apples. This group was much larger than anticipated, but because of the support by all, complete control was maintained.

The effect of this party was evidenced by complete lack of litter and damage throughout the village Monday morning. It goes to show what can be done when the entire community voluntarily gets behind things. The Tinley Park Recreation Commission invites the cooperation of the public for all its affairs which are primarily in the interest of the young people.

FRANKFORT FUN NIGHT A SUCCESS

The Fair and Fun night given by the teachers and pupils of the Frankfort public school October 29, drew a capacity crowd. The program was carried out splendidly.

Many pets were brought by the children, consisting of, cats, dogs, living hens, banty chicks, ducks and even a raccoon, and gold fish. This drew much attention.

There was a fine display of the pupils' craft work, which was on display and the dolls and other hand work, made the place look like an art gallery.

The American Legion brought an exhibit of articles made by the disabled veterans and put on sale. These were beautiful and were well patronized.

The P.T.A. members had a pit and coffee stand, and the pies—they melted in your mouth. Needless to say, they were sold out.

Games were played which gave diversion to all and after a good program, an air of good fellowship prevailed throughout the evening. The teachers and pupils are to be congratulated for their efforts and splendid work.

The proceeds from this evening are to be used for their improvement of the school grounds and for the benefit of the children. A bicycle rack has been purchased which adds much to the appearance of the grounds and also keeps the bicycles in their proper place.

"Husbands, Wives, and Marriage"

Maybe you read that survey published recently in a national magazine, entitled "Husbands, Wives, and Marriage."

It showed that among happily married couples, those who criticized themselves outnumbered those who criticized the other person. Among unhappily married couples, it was just the opposite—each one tended to criticize the other.

That's the way it is in our town, as I guess it is in yours. Criticism, whether it's of a wife's taste for hats, or a husband's taste for pipe tobacco and an evening glass of beer or ale, is a sure start towards unhappiness.

As for what made happy marriages, companionship within the home was listed most important of all. And from where I sit, a husband and wife who can spend an evening by the fire—with nothing more exciting than a mellow glass of beer, and a friendly conversation—are a truly well-matched couple!

LAW ON THE FARM

FENCING RESPONSIBILITIES

Farmers are not the only property owners who build fences. Statutory and common law rules in Illinois impose certain fencing obligations on several public, private, and semi-public agencies. These statutes and rules may be summarized briefly as follows:

Railroads are required by law to fence their right of way against livestock. In interpreting the statute our courts have held that this is a reasonable requirement and that railroad corporations must comply, that the fences must be sufficient, that they must be erected along the edge of the right of way, and that the adjoining owner may make use of the fence in pasturing his animals. Responsibility for the fence may rest with the adjoining owner if he voluntarily contracts with the railroad corporation to build or maintain it. Ordinarily a railroad must pay damages if persons on its trains or livestock on its tracks are injured because of an inadequate railroad fence.

School districts in Illinois "... must keep and maintain, in good repair, all division fences between school grounds and adjoining lands." Although the statute does not prescribe the kind of fence which must be maintained, it can be assumed that it should be a legal fence as described in the fence law—one capable of turning hogs, sheep, cattle and horses.

Fireworks plants erected in the future must be completely enclosed by a fence and all gates must be kept locked or guarded by a watchman.

Persons endowed with real estate by operation of the Illinois law on dower are required by law to maintain fences (and other improvements) in good repair.

It would seem that cemeteries, park districts or other agencies owning land, should in the absence of statute have the same responsibilities as a private owner with respect to the maintenance of division fences, unless the nature of their activity would not require fencing at all. On the other hand if they need a more expensive fence than the ordinary farm owner, then it could well be argued that it should be built and maintained by the agency. A cemetery, for example, might want a fence which would have architectural beauty and which would cost much more than a farm fence.

Highway officials are not required to fence the road right of way, and drainage ditches are by law exempted from the duty of fencing their ditches.

Alfalfa Meal for Hogs

Plenty of alfalfa meal in the sow's ration can make the difference between two or three pigs per litter at weaning time, or seven or eight pigs.

That's the word from Harry G. Russell, livestock specialist, University of Illinois.

"If you have some sows farrowing in late fall or early winter, it's money in your pocket to feed them at least 10 percent alfalfa meal in their total ration," Russell says. "This will take the place of legume pasture which they can't get at that season."

During tests at the College of Agriculture, Urbana, one group of sows was fed a normal ration plus alfalfa meal. Another lot received the same ration, but the same feed nutrients known to be in alfalfa meal were supplied artificially.

The first group—with alfalfa meal—raised 75 to 85 percent of their litters. Those without natural alfalfa meal lost 75 to 85 percent of their litters. That's where the difference shows up between two or three pigs, or seven or eight pigs at weaning time.

Experiments at Indiana and Iowa have shown the same general results, Russell said.

"The vitamins found in alfalfa meal make the difference," the livestock specialist explained. "It's a big difference, too."

Russell says a good supplement mixture to use with farm grain is 200 pounds of tankage, 100 pounds of soy bean meal, and 100 pounds of alfalfa meal.

The American Cancer Society distributed more than 10 million pieces of educational literature during 1947.

Farm Economic Future

Farmers can expect the economic weather to remain fair and sunny through most of next year, according to Agricultural Department officials.

Last week, Department economists predicted that large personal incomes will peg demand for farm products in 1949 near the record levels of the current year. They expect that disposable income will continue near the record annual rate of 186 billion dollars—about 10 percent above 1947—attained during the first half of this year.

Only storm signal on the horizon right now is the possibility of a slight drop in consumer incomes near the end of next year. Officials concede that such a decline, timed with another round of bumper crops, would have a depressing effect on grain prices.

It would affect milk and dairy products much less, since milk production would be seasonally low at that time.

Exports of farm products will probably decline further next year, due mainly to dollar exchange troubles of importing countries. This year, exports will be moderately smaller than in 1947.

In recent months, the Department has been hedging its predictions with a great many cautionary if's and but's. The new outlook statement is the most positive and cheering note to be sounded in a long while.

However, it's a good idea to remember one thing—predictions are not always infallible.

Motor Club Presents Safety Awards

Thirteen public and parochial elementary schools in the southwest suburban area will be presented with certificates of award for meritorious service of their safety patrols, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club announced today.

Presentation ceremonies will be held at 1:30 p.m., Wednesday, November 3, in the assembly room of the Covington school, 91st street and 52nd avenue, Oak Lawn. The schools to be honored are in Evergreen Park, Lemont, Oak Lawn, Orland Park, Palos Park and Worth.

This is the sixth consecutive year that the motor club has honored the patrols having a commendable record of no fatalities or injuries among school children at crossings protected by the safety patrol during the school year ending June 1948.

Tribute will be paid to patrol members by civic leaders, educators and police officials who will take part in the program.

Permanently established by Mr. Hayes in 1922, the safety patrol now has enrolled 20,000 school children in Cook county to protect fellow students on their way to and from school. The membership is in excess of 46,000 throughout the Chicago Motor Club's territory in Illinois and Indiana.

Among the schools receiving certificates are: Doctor, Orland Park; Orland Park Public, Orland Park; Palos Park, Palos Park.

Freeze Your Chickens For Future Eating

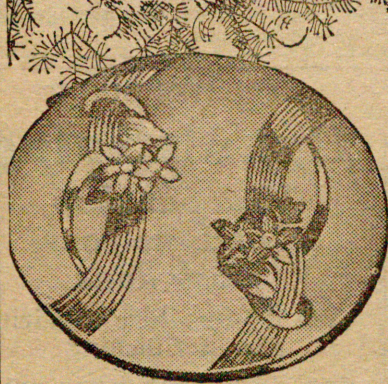

Freeze them for future eating—that's the treatment to give healthy low-producing or nonlaying hens when you find any in a flock.

A space-saving way for freezing hens is recommended by foods and nutrition specialists at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. "Prepare only as many chickens as you can handle at a time. Get them ready for freezing by dressing them and drawing them fully. Then cut them up."

Now for the space-saving method: Separate meaty pieces, (breasts, thighs) from the bony pieces, (wings, backs, necks). Legs may go in either group. Freeze the meaty pieces raw for later use to stew or braise. Insert each piece in a fold of cellophane to prevent their freezing together. Pack into medium-sized paperboard cartons, lined or covered with cellophane that can be heat-sealed. Seal and freeze promptly.

Then the bony pieces can be cooked and the meat cut from the bones. Use meat to make creamed chicken and freeze.

Man Is Riding Life Cycle Toward His Destruction

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—Today we have two visitors whom I met recently at the Smithsonian institution, Mrs. Neanderthaler (her husband wasn't available) and Mr. Cro-Magnon.

They have come a long way. The Neanderthalers lived about 25,000 years ago—but what's a few thousand years among friends—or relatives? I doubt that the Neanderthalers are relatives of ours—and I'm not sorry.

They lived early in the Old Stone age, and died without leaving any known heirs, assigns or descendants—which may be just as well for the rest of us who might have inherited some of their characteristics. They were sub-humans—stocky folks—but they couldn't take it. They died out.

Now Mr. Cro-Magnon was a different proposition. He was a superior human and I wish he were a relative because he was really superior to us—better body, better brain.

If he'd only lasted, what a career he would have had in Hollywood—and what he might have done for us! He might have saved us. He may still.

I've been reading two new books—"Our Plundered Planet," by Fairfield Osborn and "Road to Survival," by William Vogt.

Our friend Neanderthaler probably managed to stick around 200,000 years or so before his environment or his neighbors finished him off.

Today we are rapidly changing our environment, and unless we cease destroying our sources of food and shelter, we shall soon destroy ourselves, as our sub-human friend was destroyed.

We know that there are two things which chiefly distinguish man from the animal: The way he has developed the use of his hands and the way his brain works. But our hands, at the levers of machines, conceived by our brains, have so disturbed the cycle of nature, have done such terrible things to all forms of life, that they may prove our undoing—if they don't blow us into atomic eternity, first!

Forgetting atomic destruction, let's look at some others.

We are very good at reproducing. In three centuries the population of the earth has increased almost five times. In the seventeenth century there were 400 million people. There are 2,000 million today. Five times as many mouths to feed.

Osborne says: "If one takes four billion acres, representing an area of land estimated as now available for cultivation, it means that there are less than two acres per capita. Contrasted with this is a generally accepted computation that two and one-half acres of land of average productivity are required to provide even a minimum adequate diet for each person."

Think of that: It takes two and one-half acres to feed you properly. There are now only two acres avail-age depth of the topsoil on the earth is about one foot. It is estimated that it takes nature, under favorable conditions, from 300 to 1,000 years to build one inch of that vital source of our food, clothing and shelter.

"Yet," he says, "what may have taken a thousand years to build can be, and in some places has been, removed by erosion in a year, or even in a single day."

Erosion. That comes from overuse, wrong use or removal of protecting grasses and trees. We overgrazed the plains to get quick money for beef, mutton and wool. We plowed fields of grass, left them exposed, and you remember what happened—the dust bowl. We slaughtered the forests and reaped the yearly devastating floods. Today our food and shelter runs down the muddy rivers to be lost in the ocean.

And animal life? We killed off millions of wild animals on this continent. We replaced them, to some extent, by domestic animals. But we are breaking the magic cycle of life there, too, for the life-giving properties of most of our domestic animals do not return to the soil as did the bones and bodies of wild life that lived their course, died and were enveloped in their mother earth.

Sheep and cattle are shipped today to slaughter houses where what little is left disappears in disposal plants or goes back to the ocean.

We are killing the soil. Gradually removing it and the tiny animal and plant cells it contains, and thus destroying the potential for reproducing the tiny living organisms in the top soil which are a part of the relationship of all living things.

I haven't space to go on, but I don't want to leave on a too-depressing note. It's true that our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Neanderthaler, the sub-human folk with the little brain, couldn't take it. But we can hope that his successor, Mr. Cro-Magnon, who had a better brain than we have, passed some of it on to us, with the spark of something else that made him lift his chin a little from the clod.

"We have been taught to lift ours higher, to the heavens. There's hope up there—and inspiration—and within ourselves the power, too, if we know how to use it."

More Trees On the Way

American farmers will have more trees to plant next year than ever before in our history.

State nurseries plan to grow 368,976,551 in 1947-48, according to a national survey just completed by the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., of Washington, D. C.

Most of these trees will be sold to farmers and other landowners at cost, while many will be given to farmers free of charge by forest industries who purchase them from state nurseries.

This forest seedling production, however, will be increased substantially by federal and private industry nurseries over the United States, pushing the total to approximately 400 million seedlings.

Yet these figures, representing the planting of three trees for every man, woman and child in the country, indicate statistically that seedling production still is not enough to fill the demand by woodland owners and other citizens interested in growing trees.

And while they still do not meet the tremendous demand, if all these seedlings were planted 1,000 to an acre they would form a verdant, mile-wide belt stretching from New York to Chicago.

The record in tree planting is matched only by the volume of new wood now growing on America's forest lands. Total growth now exceeds 13.3 billion cubic feet of wood every year—greatest volume ever recorded in surveys made by the federal government.

Paper Draperies

The main advantage to paper draperies is that they are generally low priced compared with fabric draperies and can be discarded for new ones with little expense.

If you want draperies to use for just a short time, such as when you're living in a temporary home, probably paper draperies are a good bet for you. Miss Marion Kaeser, home furnishings specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture, lists some points to help you when you're considering using them.

Miss Kaeser advises you to check further if you find that paper draperies are almost as expensive as fabric. You'll probably be better off to choose the fabric kind.

If you want figured or striped draperies, you will find a good selection in the paper variety. But there are few if any plain colored ones on the market. If a room has much pattern in it in rug, wallpaper, etc., you'll probably want to get plain fabric draperies.

Try to get an idea of how well the paper type will hang. Up until recently, they would not hang so softly as cloth draperies, but manufacturers are working to improve this feature.

Manufacturers are working also to make paper draperies mildew-proof and fire-proof. Do not hang them near a fireplace or stove unless they are fireproof, Miss Kaeser warns.

Paper draperies are ideal for the sick room where there's a contagious disease. They can be destroyed when the patient is well.

Illinois, which thirty years ago was producing only about 5 million pounds of cheese annually, now ranks second to Wisconsin in the making of American, Swiss and brick cheese. Stephenson, Jo Daviess, Carroll and Ogle counties are the leading cheese producing regions of Illinois. Approximately 70,630,000 pounds of these three varieties of cheese were made in Illinois in 1946.

To maintain good tilth it is necessary to grow more than a million cars and trucks in 1948, the backlog of orders still totals about a million.

While Ford Motor Company expects to make more than a million cars and trucks in 1948, the backlog of orders still totals about a million.

Thrifty Alfalfa Catches Depend on Tillage, Seeding Methods and Plenty of Plant Food

Well-fertilized Soil Yields More Tons of Hay Per Acre.

CHICAGO — Whether you get thrifty or poor catches of alfalfa or sweet clover depends less on the crop that precedes the legume in the rotation than on the soil management and tillage practices you use at legume seeding time, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in a statement issued here.

"Corn-soybean farmers have complained of clover failures following soybeans," the statement says. "But tests by Dr. F. A. Frank, research agronomist in soybeans at Purdue University Agricultural Experiment station showed slightly better legume yields following soybeans than corn, when other factors were well handled.

"Good nutrition is a must for good legume stands. To develop sturdy root systems and build a thick growth above the ground, clover or alfalfa needs plenty of fertilizer carrying phosphate and potash. Liming, based on soil tests is vital, too.

"Your seeding methods are equally important. You need a firm seed bed, free of clods. You should use seeding methods that will give shallow planting and good coverage."

Disabled Vets to have Special License Plates

Springfield, Illinois—A distinctive new design for the 1949 special automobile license plates for disabled veterans has been announced by Edward J. Barrett, Secretary of State. The new plates will be canary yellow with dark blue numerals—the reverse of the color scheme of the regular 1949 automobile license plates which have a dark blue background and yellow figures.

The disabled veteran plates are further distinguished by the designation "Disabled Veteran" in red letters at the top of the plate and by a red "V" prefix to the numerals. The "V", Secretary Barrett explained, denotes both "victory" and "veteran."

The story behind the special plate for amputee and paraplegic veterans goes back to early this year when the motoring experience of two amputees was brought to the attention of Secretary Barrett. The two handicapped veterans experienced motor trouble and sat along the side of the highway for more than two hours before they were able to attract assistance from the passing motorist. The special license plate was created immediately by Secretary Barrett to meet such a situation and appeals were broadcast to all other motorists urging them to be courteous to drivers whose car carries the disabled veterans license plates. These plates are available to amputees and paraplegic veterans who have qualified for cars from the Federal Government. These cars are equipped with special manual controls and the drivers to qualify for the special plates must have passed special driving tests.

Off Flavor Pork

If you're spraying your hogs for mange with benzene hexachloride, nicknamed BHC or 666, be sure to wait at least 30 days after spraying before you butcher any of them. If you don't you may taste an off-flavor in the pork, especially the fat.

With mange-spraying season coming on, that's the word of caution given to farm-butchers by Sleetor Bull, professor of meats, University of Ill.

The meats specialist says he has received several inquiries asking why the lard from home-butchered hogs was off-flavor, and he can't find any other reason for it except spraying with BHC. Other experiment stations have found this to be true, he said, and the College of Agriculture intends to run some tests this fall.

For all practical purposes, there is no danger to humans from eating pork from hogs sprayed with BHC. The off flavor meat tastes like moldy hay, and one mouthful is enough.

In all likelihood, it also is perfectly harmless to eat pork from hogs sprayed with BHC if you wait 30 days or longer after spraying for the flavor to wear off, it is believed.

National Apple Week will be observed October 25 to November 1.

The Deep Litter System

You can keep your chickens from getting cold feet this winter—and take care of them with less work—by using the deep litter system in your poultry house.

And right now is the time to start building that carpet of deep litter, says S. F. Riden, extension poultryman, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. These steps are needed:

First, clean your poultry house thoroughly. Next, place a layer of litter two or three inches deep on the floor. Then, instead of changing litter at the end of two weeks, add an inch or two or new litter until it is six to nine inches deep.

You can use temporary straw, ground corn cobs, wood shavings, or various commercially prepared litter mixes according to Riden. These materials will break up and mix with the old litter.

"Deep litter makes a base of finely broken material that will provide insulation and prevent moisture from condensing on the floor," Riden explains.

"It's a great labor-saver too, and helps to cut labor costs."

The poultryman points out these precautions in following the deep litter system:

First, keep the litter dry. Leaky roofs, rain and snow coming through broken windows, and water fountains are the main source of dampness. You should eliminate these danger spots, or remove damp litter immediately and replace it with dry.

Second, rake the litter to mix it and prevent matting. Raking will encourage the birds to scratch, and that will permit the manure to settle to the bottom.

You can use this deep litter for more than one year—if you keep it dry and if you haven't had any disease in your flocks.

Soft Shelled Eggs

Don't worry if your pullets are laying soft-shelled eggs now while they are coming into production, says S. F. Riden, University of Illinois extension poultryman. Soft shells usually disappear as production increases.

You can help eliminate soft shells by feeding plenty of oyster shells, or some source of calcium, he adds, and by feeding a ration with plenty of vitamin D.

You shouldn't expect pullets to lay large eggs right away, Riden notes, but you can expect the eggs to get larger as the pullets lay often. Young birds probably will not reach maximum egg size for several weeks.

Egg size is an unknown quantity, the specialist explains. Pullets do not produce such large yolks and whites as mature hens; consequently the shell is also smaller to fit the size of the contents.

Conservation Methods Keep Soil at Home
For High Crop Yields in Years Ahead

Erosion Takes Command and Soils Wash Away on Poorly Managed Land.

CHICAGO—Building the soil and letting it wash away is like putting money in the bank and then burning the bank down, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in a statement made public here.

"Soil building needs top priority on most Midwestern farms," the statement points out. "But there is not much point in building the soil unless you keep it at home to give high crop yields."

"That is why it is so important to use the teamwork of practices that build and maintain soil structure and measures that prevent erosion and keep your soils home."

"A good crop rotation is the foundation of your soil building program. Well-fed, deep-rooted legumes and grasses are the corner stone. Liming, based on soil tests, is one of the supporting pillars. Another is a balanced supply of plant nutrients for the soil, including phosphate and potash.

"Deep-rooted legumes are No. 1 soil builders. They add to the organic matter supply. They improve soil structure. Such soil has what we call good tilth."

"Legumes and grasses can do a good soil building job only if they are well fed."

"But building soil structure is not the whole story. On some farms you can cut down erosion merely by putting the soil in shape so that less water runs off and steals your top soil. In other soils, you may need contour cultivation, strip cropping, terracing and other conservation measures."

Be Sure Christmas
Toys Are Safe

As you shop for toys—with Christmas close around the corner—find out whether playthings are safe and durable as well as suitable for your young offspring.

Miss Marguerite Briggs, family relations specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture, reminds you of these helpful pointers for choosing good toys. When you buy for the 1-4 year old, you want things sturdy enough to be able to take rough handling. And get them large enough so Baby Ann can't put them into her mouth.

Avoid playthings that are flammable, those with poisonous paint, stuffed animals with glass or button eyes, any electrical toys, and playthings that have sharp edges or small removable parts.

Miss Briggs suggests these "do's" for toy buying. For infants up to 2, she recommends sturdy rattles, rubber or washable squeak toys, stuffed animals, blocks with rounded corners, and push and pull toys with strings or rounded handles.

If you have a 2-3 year old, he'll be pleased with a sand box plus a bucket and shovel. Other good choices are wooden animals, cars and wagons to push around, pounding boards, simple plywood puzzles, tip-proof kiddie cars, and a table and chairs large enough for the child to sit in.

For the youngster who likes to play "let's pretend"—from 3-4 years old, you might buy a small broom or toy telephone. Always good are large crayons, dolls with wrap around clothes, doll buggies and furniture, dishes; a drum; building blocks; modeling clay and plastic blunt scissors for cutting.

Two hundred fifteen wells were completed during September, compared with 217 in August. Three notable wells brought in last month in the new extension to the Stringtown pool in Richland county, which flowed 1724 barrels initially from the McClosky limestone; a 900-barrel Tar Springs sandstone well in the Inman East pool and the first Illinois well in the Rochester pool, which produced 600 barrels initially from the Waltersburg sandstone.

An average of 141.2 people live on every square mile of land in Europe. According to the World Book Encyclopedia, this is more than three times as many as in the United States, with only 44.2 persons per square mile.

Civil Service Exams

The United States Civil Service Commission today announced an examination for Engineering Draftsman, Cartographic Draftsman, and Statistical Draftsman for filling positions in Washington, D. C., and vicinity. Positions in the following optional branches of Engineering Drafting will be filled from this examination: Aeronautical, Architectural, Civil, Electrical, Heating and Ventilating, Mechanical, Ship, Structural, and General. The salaries for engineering and cartographic draftsman positions are from $2,152 to $3,727 a year, and for statistical draftsman $2,284 to $3,727.

To qualify, applicants must have had from 3 months to 5 years (depending upon the grade of position for which they are applying) of appropriate experience in one of the fields of drafting mentioned above. Pertinent education may be substituted for all of the experience required for the two lower grades and for part of the experience required for the higher grade positions. No written test is required. However, each applicant will be required to furnish with his application one or more samples of his drafting skill.

Applications will be accepted in the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D. C. until further notice; however, persons who wish to receive early consideration should have their applications on file not later than December 1, 1948.

Further information and application forms may be secured at first and second-class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices, or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission in Washington.

Test Your Soil

You can make hundreds of dollars more from higher crop yields by having your soil tested to see what fertilizer it needs, says Farm Adviser C. A. Hughes.

A couple of hours spent in collecting soil samples and a few dollars invested in soil tests, can help most Cook County farmers earn much higher profits, he declared.

"These tests actually save you from wasting many hard-earned dollars on soil treatment materials that may do your soil little or no good," declares Clyde M. Linsley, soils specialist, University of Illinois Agricultural extension service.

It costs from $400 to $1,000 for liming and other soil treatments on 40 acres, according to the farm adviser. That's from $10 to $25 an acre.

But it costs only about $3.85 to test 11 samples of soil from 40 acres for lime, phosphorus and potassium, he added. That's only about 9½ cents an acre.

This small investment will help you to make sure that none of the money you spend for fertilizers is wasted, the farm adviser said.

Cook County has an up-to-date soil laboratory with a technician trained and supervised by the College of Agriculture. He is Mr. H. L. Cletcher, R. 1. Lockport, Ill. You can find out more details about the soil testing service from the farm adviser at Arlington Heights.

SCRIPTURE: The Book of Job. DEVOTIONAL READING: Job 23:3-10.

Drama in the Bible

Lesson for November 7, 1948

THOMAS CARLYLE, a crusty dyspeptic but a literary artist of no small skill, was visiting a Christian friend. In the morning at "family prayers" (so the story goes) his host put into his hands a copy of the Bible and asked him to read a chapter. Carlyle opened at the first chapter of Job; read it—read on to the next and the next — and refused to stop reading till he had finished all 42 chapters.

Job is like that. It is a book you hate to put down. In all the Bible it is the outstanding example of the drama; a drama of conflict in which the opposing forces are not people as much as ideas.

The Characters

THE characters at first are three: God, Satan and a man named Job. Job is a good man, in fact God calls him perfect. He is also prosperous, and thereby hangs the tale. For one fateful day God and Satan have a conversation about this man. The Lord inquires if Satan has seen him, and how good he is. Oh yes, Satan says airily, he has seen him, but he does not think highly of his "goodness." He is too well paid for it. He has a large and happy family, and has immense wealth; why shouldn't he be good? Take away his prosperity and he will curse you to your face, Satan sneers.

So God lets Satan work his malice on the man. In a terrible series of disasters, one rushing on another's heels everything Job has owned vanishes. His children are killed by storm and fire, and Job is left a childless, penniless man. But Job does not complain; his faith in God still does not waver.

So when next Satan reports to God, the Almighty asks again: Did you see my servant Job? He holds fast to his integrity. Ah, yes, sneers the unbelieving fiend. Yes, but he still has his health. He can have another fairly, another fortune. Make life itself so miserable that he will long to die, and then you will see his goodness vanish, then he surely will curse you to your face.

So God let Satan do his worst—Do all you can to him, God says, only leave him alive. And then Job is made horribly and painfully ill. he cannot sleep for the torture of boils covering him from head to foot. Three of his friends come to visit him. For seven days they sit in silence, and then begins a great debate with Job on one side and his friends on the other: Why must such things be? Why must good people suffer?
